Tabletop Audio Conferencing

PREMIUM AUDIO ENABLES PRODUCTIVE CONFERRING

Whether you're holding product meetings, initiating impromptu discussions about new projects, conducting investor-relations calls with remote offices or bridging in a co-worker on a cell phone, you rely on speakerphones and conferencing phones to allow you to address important issues efficiently and productively. Unfortunately, these phones can often give you clipped conversations, inconvenient interruptions and muffled sound quality — no matter how close you huddle together. And with the microphone cutting out in favor of whoever speaks loudest, no one knows what's being missed and meetings can get stressful.

You need a user-friendly conferencing phone that gives you professional-quality audio and allows simultaneous conversation to flow without interruption. Introducing a clear end to your frustrations. ClearOne Communications has integrated years of professional-quality installed audio expertise into affordable, attractive tabletop conferencing phones. You get incredible clarity, straightforward controls — and a whole new outlook on conferencing.

Interact Naturally

What you say is what they get. With the superior full-duplex sound of the ClearOne Max™ Wireless and Max™ EX, you experience fluid two-way communication without interruption. That means everyone can speak at once — and be heard as if they were all in the same room. Conversations become more compelling; meetings are more interactive; and debates are more dynamic. With the ClearOne Max Wireless or Max EX, not only can your discussions flow more freely, so can productivity.

WIRELESS FREEDOM AND WIRED EXPANDABILITY

ClearOne Tabletop Conferencing Phones eliminate many of the common distractions you've come to expect in conference calls. Between the Max Wireless and Max EX, there's an ideal solution for every space. Both designs are easy to transport and configure, and cost a fraction of what you might expect. Max Wireless lets you easily convert any office within 150 feet of the base station into a conference room without wires on the table or the floor. Max EX expands to fit larger rooms by linking up to four phone units complete with microphones, loudspeakers and controls for an even distribution of sound.

Both Max Wireless and Max EX incorporate cutting-edge technologies from ClearOne's professional audio equipment, including adaptive noise cancellation and proprietary Gentner® Distributed Echo Cancellation®, making sure your conversation is all that's heard loud and clear, rather than constant noises like whirring fans, heating systems and running PCs. And of course, both phones integrate full-duplex sound for maximized two-way communication. User-friendly buttons let you select ring tones, program speed-dial and begin conferencing in a flash, without having to call IT for assistance. ClearOne Conferencing Phones allow you to sit back, relax and interact. When your conferencing phone does what it's supposed to do, you'll be surprised at how much meetings can accomplish.

Customers are Talking

"ClearOne has earned a stellar reputation for innovation and expertise in conferencing audio over the years, and Max Wireless should further enhance that reputation. The company has done an excellent job of blending its proven audio performance with the flexibility and convenience of wireless technology. I think ClearOne has a winner in Max Wireless."

— Brent Kelly,
Wainhouse Research

"Max Wireless definitely fills a void in the conferencing marketplace, as there are currently no other wireless conferencing phone options available. I am quite impressed with the phone's audio quality, wireless range and ease of use, the combination of which will attract customers to this ClearOne product."

— Elliot Gold,
